CALDERMEADE FARM SUNDAY RUN

Our end of month run for May was to Caldermeade Farm which is situated on the South Gippsland Highway near Pakenham, perfect for a day trip.

We set off from Baxter Tavern for an easy 40 min drive. It was a slightly lower pace for all on the roads as the fog got thicker as we travelled through open farm land heading towards Gippsland.

Caldermeade Farm is a café and events venue within the working dairy farm.

The Café offers both inside and outside dining with views over the playground and gardens. There is plenty for the children to do with the animal nursery and many animal enclosures. They have everything from Highland cattle, goats, deer, alpacas, chickens, rabbits, ducks and geese etc, and tractor trailer rides are available on weekends.

The farm also produces items for sale such as cheeses, relishes, ice-creams and many other dairy related products. Their award winning pies are scrumptious, as is the Devonshire tea and baked fresh scones.

Settled in 1875, Caldermeade was originally one of the region's premier beef cattle properties. Today it is a modern, fully operational commercial dairy farm focusing on educating and entertaining its visitors. Schools, communities, disabled and special interest groups can take advantage of specialised farm tours by arrangement. On the 3rd Saturday of each month they host a fabulous market that people come from far and wide to wander through. The market is partially undercover, dog friendly, and open from 9am to 2pm.

A herd of over 500 jersey cows provides the beautifully creamy milk used in various milk products. Hailing from the channel island of the same name, Jersey cows are known for their rich, creamy and distinctive yellowish milk. The cows are milked twice a day with the afternoon viewing starting at 2.30. There is a viewing room upstairs where visitors can view the entire herd being milked on the moving rotunda. It was amazing to watch the cows load themselves onto the rotunda whilst it is continually turning, and then back off after they have had their turn. They are enticed on by food in the troughs and then automatically squirted with a blast of water in the face so they back off!

Members enjoyed lunch in the warmth of the large indoor area within the café, and when the fog lifted and the sun shone through, enjoyed exploring the grounds and animal attractions. Good old Melbourne weather, from thick fog to a delightful sunny day!

It was a perfect day for the Grandchildren of some members who had fun exploring whilst the adults kicked back over a relaxed lunch or a bask in the sunshine. Some members left before the 2.30 milking session, but for those of us that stayed! ..... What an entertaining sight that was for those of us that have never been inside to view to workings of a daily farm before.

A petrol station owner in Dublin was trying to increase his sales, so he put up a sign that read ..... 'Free Sex with every Full Tank.'

Paddy pulled in, filled his tank and asked for his free sex. The owner told him to pick a number from 1 to 10. If he guessed correctly, he would get his free sex. Paddy guessed 8, and the proprietor said, 'You were close. The number was 7. Sorry... No sex this time.' A week later, Paddy, along with his friend Mick, pulled in for another fill-up. Again he asked for his free sex. The proprietor again gave him the same story, and asked him to guess the correct number. Paddy guessed 2. The proprietor said, 'Sorry... it was 3. You were close, but no free sex this time.'

As they were driving away, Mick said to Paddy, 'I think that game is rigged and he doesn't really give away free sex at all.' Paddy replied ..... 'No it's genuine enough Mick. My wife won twice last week.'

MAN FINDS HIS BELOVED CLASSIC RACING CAR ON EBAY, 42 YEARS AFTER IT WAS STOLEN

A man has found his beloved 1967 Austin Healey 3000 after thieves stole it 42 years ago. Bob Russell, 66, was a graduate at Temple University in Philadelphia and used the classic cream-coloured British racing car to woo his wife Cynthia who was also a student there. The car, which Mr Russell paid $3000 for but could be worth up over $50,000 today, was stolen from a parking lot the morning after their second date.

Mr Russell, a retired sales manager from Texas, spent years surfing the internet looking for his car and eyeing similar Healeys on the road. Still, he didn't hold out much hope of ever finding the vehicle, which he bought from a friend in 1968.

'The fact that the car could still exist was improbable,' he told Associated Press. 'It could have been junked or wrecked.'

However, a dogged search over the decades came up with a victory when Mr Russell spied the car for sale on eBay.

'Ever since eBay showed up, I'd check it periodically,' Mr Russell said.....

'I checked it on Friday, May 11, and there it was.'

He immediately called the dealer, the

Beverly Hills Car Club, and sounded the alarm. 'I hate to sound indelicate,' Mr Russell told the unsuspecting dealer, 'but you're selling a stolen car.'

The last bid on the vehicle was $19,700, which didn't meet the reserve, said Mr Russell, and the car didn't sell. Mr Russell said the car's vehicle identification number matched that of his Healey. In addition, he still had the original key and car title, as well as signed affidavits from friends, including the original owner, indicating that Mr Russell had never sold the auto. But one legal roadblock remained: He didn't have a copy of the stolen-car report he filed back in 1970. So the two sides stalled, with the dealer telling Mr Russell it bought the car from a man who claimed it had been in his family since 1970. 'Well,' Mr Russell responded, 'the car was stolen in 1970, so you can draw your own conclusion. They either stole it or bought it from the guy who stole it.'

After four weeks of haggling with the dealer, which initially offered to sell the car back to him for about $24,000, Mr Russell asked law enforcement agencies in Philadelphia and Los Angeles for help.

Turns out the original stolen-car report he filed in Philadelphia wasn't showing up at the National Crime Information Center because one VIN letter was entered incorrectly into the FBI's computerised index of crimes. But thanks to persistent detectives in Philadelphia, Mr Russell said, the report finally was located. Once he got his hands on a copy of the report, Philadelphia police were able to reactivate the file. That enabled the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department to impound the car. Mr Russell and his wife drove to LA on June 16 and took possession of the car two days later after paying roughly $600 in impoundment fees. They also paid about $800 to have the Austin Healey shipped to their Southlake home, where it arrived June 23.

'We were probably out $1,500 plus six days of travel and hotel costs,' Russell said. 'I'm not complaining about any of that. I couldn't get the credit card out of my pocket fast enough.'

Russell said he intends to restore the Austin Healey. 'It still runs, but the brakes don't work well,' he said. 'We're going to put it back the way it was.' When the restoration is finished, he said, the car 'probably will be worth around $50,000'. 'I had a hobby car but got rid of my Porsche 911 a year ago,' he said. 'I used to have an antique Corvette and a couple of motorcycles. Now I have a grandpa (Toyota) Camry.'

Mr Russell and his wife have come a long way since the car was stolen. She retired as an English teacher two years ago, and he mostly plays golf these days. Mrs Russell credits her husband's 'dogged sleuthing and fantastic help from friends, family and law enforcement officers' for getting the car back where it belongs.
